The Long Island Rail Road Bargaining Coalition—comprised of five unions currently in contract negotiations with the MTA/LIRR—represents the interests of over 3,500 members employed by the Long Island Rail Road, accounting for more than 50% of the LIRR workforce.

Union members, leadership, and elected officials will stand together in solidarity as negotiations continue.

CONTRACTS AT RISK

With contracts unresolved, a potential work stoppage could occur as early as May 16, 2026 if an agreement is not reached. The unions remain ready to negotiate in good faith and reach a fair resolution.
